Bank's Bookkeeper Identifies Verdict in Uniform Inquiry Defendant's Signature on Government Exhibits.

to Be Mrs. Isabell

When Justice Siddons ordered a recess yesterday afternoon until Monday morning in the trial of John William Henry for embezzling $41,000 none of the various checks alleged to have been sent to the stock broker by Mrs. Isabell Barkile, of tracks for policemen's and firemen's uniforms. stock broker by Mrs. Isabell Barkle, of Wayne, Pa., had been admitted as evidence. About a score of government exhibits offered for identification and supposed to be Mrs. Basklie's checks were examined by witnesses and counsel, but the full contents of these exhibits did not reach the furn.

A heated dispute as to whether the checks had been offered in evidence on Thursday arose between Attorney Daniel Thew Wright, counsel for Henry, and Assistant United States Attorney James Archer, who is aiding United States Attorney John E. Laskey in the prosecution

Objects at Wrong Time. Mr. Archer made valiant attempts get the facts before the jury but was fought at every step by Mr. Wright. In the afternoon session Attorney Wright made two score of objections. Justice Siddons overruled so many of these that Wright got in the habit of noting exceptions, and on one occasion excepted when he was favored by the ruling. The afternoon session was a continuous round of trouble. Charles E. Marsh, secretary of the Real Estate Trust and Co-lumbia Title Company, a witness, was by the court for being late. testimony concerned a check which he said he drew "as proceeds of a loan on lot 73, square 115." William C. Hooker, general bookkeeper for the District National Bank since September 10, 1909, testified that he had charge of the account at the bank of Lewis Johnson & Co., the bankrupt brokerage firm of which John William Henry was a member. Hooker said he had known Henry for twenty-five years, that he had say the said he had say the said he had say the sa he hand seen Henry's handwriting signature on letters addressed to Hooker, on checks and in indorse ments, and declared that checks bear ing the name of J. Prosecutor Archer handed one of the covernment exhibits to Hooker and ask "Whose handwriting is on the back The witness answered "I think it is the handwriting of J. Willlam Henry. The check also bears a stamp of the District National Bank showing that the check was deposited there to the account of Lewis Johnson & Co."

Will you look on the account sheet before you and see if the deposit of the check is recorded there?"

"On April 28, I see here, a deposit of $5,000 was made to the credit of Lewis Johnson & Co. The check bears the stamp of the bank, showing that credit for $5,000 was given." Mr. Archer then showed Hooker about a score of the government exhibits, asking the witness if he recognized the signatures. Hooker on each occasion replied: "Yes, the signatures."
